1 Policy statement

Missing People is committed to the principle and practice of safeguarding. It is the responsibility of all employees and volunteers at Missing People to play a key role in safeguarding all children, young people and adults at risk of harm with whom we come into contact.

Missing People’s vision is that every missing person is found safe. We offer a lifeline to the 170,000 people who run away and go missing each year. For those left behind, we provide specialised support and the chance to connect with others who are missing a loved one. It is through these services that we aim to safeguard and protect children and adults.

We recognise that being able to recognise risk to children and adults at risk effectively and take appropriate action is a vital part of the work we do as an organisation.

Missing People offers a pledge of confidentiality to the users of our services (Reference 1: Confidentiality Policy). Confidentiality is the foundation on which our services are built, as it allows people to trust us. It is only through building a relationship of trust that we are able to help someone to stay safe. However, the safety and welfare of the individual is of prime importance, which means that Missing People will consider disclosing information about a service user without their agreement, where there is sufficient reason to believe

- that they are at significant risk of serious harm, or
- that their life, or someone else’s life, is in danger.

Missing People recognises the significant and vital role that it plays in protecting children and adults at risk from harm and promoting their wellbeing. We believe that all children and adults have the right to live without fear, abuse, harm, exploitation or intimidation. The organisation is committed to safeguarding all children and vulnerable adults, irrespective of age, ability, race, religion or belief, sex, sexual orientation, gender reassignment, and any other protected characteristics as stated by Equality Act 2010.

The impact of abuse and neglect of any child or young person, either physically, emotionally or sexually, can have a major long-term effect on all aspects of their health, development and well-being. Everyone involved in working with children has a duty to:

- Prevent abuse and neglect
- Identify those children at risk

- Promote children’s welfare, health and development
- Act to prevent them from harm

Similarly, adult safeguarding aims to stop abuse or neglect, and to support adults to make choices and have control about how they want to live.

One of Missing People’s values is being grounded in helping people affected by ‘missing’ and this means we need to maintain a safe and inclusive culture; staff and volunteers must not exploit their position of trust to harm or abuse the people we are here to support. Staff are encouraged to share any “low level concerns” about a colleague who they think may be acting in a way that is inconsistent with the organisation’s values and expectations of conduct. Missing People promotes an open and transparent culture where all concerns are dealt with promptly and appropriately.

2 Policy structure

SER-HL-002	Safeguarding Policy	Sets out Missing People’s commitment to safeguarding, key responsibilities and governance framework
SER-HL-003	Safeguarding Procedures	Explains how to identify and respond to safeguarding concerns
SER-HL-005	Safeguarding Reference Documents	Additional information to support the policy and procedures

The majority of Missing People’s services support both children and adults and for this reason we have one over-arching set of policy and procedures.

3 Principles

3.1 Principles

Missing People’s Safeguarding Policy is based on the following principles:

Grounded in the needs of missing people and their families and our knowledge of the vulnerabilities that they face.

True to the ethos of our services. We offer confidentiality in order to build a relationship of trust, and aim to empower our service users. We respect a person’s right to be missing and we work with them to keep them safe. We have a culture of listening to children and adults and taking account of their wishes and feelings, both in individual decisions and the development of services.

Strategic – the Policy will help Missing People achieve our vision that every missing person is found safe. We help to find vulnerable missing people and we provide help and support to children and adults who contact us.

We operate in the following ways, in order to deliver effective safeguarding:

- Oversight – we have clear roles and responsibilities for safeguarding at every level of the organisation.
- Support – staff and volunteers are given training and supervision appropriate to their role, and are able to access the On Call Manager 24 hours a day.

- Accountability – staff and volunteers keep records of all work with vulnerable people and any concerns about safeguarding or decisions made.
- Internal information sharing – we understand that a child or adult at risk of harm may share different pieces of risk information with different people within the organisation and we ensure that we are able to “join up the dots”.
- Multi-agency working – we recognise that as an organisation we are not able to keep people safe on our own, and we share relevant information with statutory agencies when needed.
- Best practice – we are compliant with good practice frameworks relating to safeguarding, and as an organisation we ensure that we keep our knowledge current.
- Scrutiny – with the help of our Safeguarding Panel of experts, we monitor the effectiveness of our Safeguarding Policy and Procedures and act on any learning.
- Safer recruitment – we carry out relevant checks before allowing staff and volunteers to work regularly with children and vulnerable adults.

Whistleblowing – we have clear whistleblowing procedures for staff and volunteers and we foster a culture where everyone feels free to speak up about any concerns.

Responsibility - we have clear procedures for dealing with complaints against staff or volunteers who work with children and vulnerable adults, including the disclosing of allegations with the relevant authorities.

3.2 Context

3.2.1 UN Convention on Rights of the Child

Our philosophy and approach to safeguarding children are grounded in the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, and support Article 34 – the right to protection from sexual abuse; Article 39 – the right to special help for children who have been abused; Article 16 – the right to privacy, and Article 12 – the right to be involved in decisions that affect them.

A child’s basic rights include:

- Protection against all forms of discrimination and punishment
- Survival and development
- Protection from abuse and neglect
- Education, housing, healthcare, and all forms of mental and physical well-being

We also believe that “Every child has the right to a voice on matters that affect them and to have their views taken seriously – in accordance with their age and maturity. (UNICEF, 2009)”

3.2.2 Working Together to Safeguard Children (2018)

Working Together to Safeguard Children - A guide to inter-agency working to safeguard and promote the welfare of children promotes a child-centred approach to safeguarding where safeguarding is everyone’s responsibility, and everyone who works with children has a responsibility for keeping them safe.

Working Together to Safeguard Children states that voluntary organisations should have appropriate arrangements in place to safeguard and protect children from harm. Charity trustees are responsible for ensuring that those benefiting from, or working with, their charity, are not harmed in any way through contact with it.

3.2.3 Care Act 2014 – statutory guidance for implementation

The Care Act guidance states that in any organisation, there should be adult safeguarding policies and procedures. It sets out the aims of adult safeguarding and promotes six key principles to underpin all adults safeguarding work: empowerment, prevention, proportionality, protection, partnership, and accountability.

4 Definitions

4.1 Children and Young People

Missing People recognises a child as a person under 18 years of age.

4.2 Adults at risk of harm

Missing People recognises a an adult at risk of harm as an adult who

- has needs for care and support (whether or not the local authority is meeting any of those needs), and
- is experiencing, or at risk of, abuse or neglect, and
- as a result of those care and support needs is unable to protect themselves from either the risk of, or the experience of, abuse or neglect

A person's vulnerability may be permanent and temporary and this may include people with mental health problems, people with suicidal feelings or ideation, people who misuse drugs or alcohol, people who have been exploited and/or trafficked, people who have been radicalised, and victims of forced marriage. Someone who is missing is at increased risk of harm and exploitation.

The context of having a loved one who is missing, can make someone vulnerable or increase their vulnerability to harm or exploitation.

4.3 Abuse

The abuse and neglect of children are forms of maltreatment – a person may abuse or neglect a child by inflicting harm, or by failing to act to prevent harm. There are four main categories of child abuse and neglect: physical abuse, emotional abuse, sexual abuse and neglect.

Abuse is a violation of an individual's human and civil rights by any other person or persons. Abuse may consist of a single act or repeated acts. Abuse can occur in any relationship and may result in significant harm to, or exploitation of, the person subjected to it.

Categories of abuse and neglect of adults include:

- Physical abuse
- Domestic violence
- Sexual abuse
- Psychological abuse
- Financial or material abuse
- Modern slavery
- Discriminatory abuse
- Organisational abuse
- Neglect and acts of omission
- Self-neglect

4.4 Safeguarding and significant harm

Safeguarding involves

- the action we take to promote the welfare of children and protect them from harm
- the protection of those adults who, without support to be able to challenge and change harmful or abusive situations, become vulnerable, and at risk of harm/abuse.

Significant harm is “the threshold that justifies compulsory intervention in family life in the best interests of the child”, as defined in the Children Act 1989. The local authority will determine whether the harm or likely harm suffered by the child is significant by comparing the child’s health or development with that which could reasonably be expected of a similar child. Significant harm is ill treatment or impairment of health or development, and it can be as a result of witnessing the ill-treatment of another person.

Significant harm is the threshold for a child protection investigation, whereas safeguarding is early intervention.

5 Roles and Responsibilities

They must complete Safeguarding Basics training during their induction and repeat this annually. They include processes for identifying and managing risk, and responding to concerns and reports (Reference 2). The Procedures cover the situations in which the organisation may share information about a service user, staff member, trustee or volunteer with the relevant authorities.

7 Ensuring Effectiveness

Missing People makes sure that its staff, volunteers and trustees understand the Safeguarding Policy.

Safeguarding training and annual refresher training are provided to all staff and volunteers who come into contact with vulnerable people.

Missing People monitors the effectiveness of its Safeguarding Policy and Procedures through regular proactive case review and scrutiny by its Safeguarding Panel.

The Policy is reviewed annually.
